Click to expand... The Maximus made by Infinite Operations Inc. for the Nomad X is $1095 and includes the high impact windshield. For about $1200 (including shipping), you can buy a low-impact windshield and the windshield from Argonaut Windshields would fit into the dash hole, which will require a drill. A: Here is a very detailed and comprehensive answer regarding the windshield and its different parts from AutoAnything: Additionally, the question you are asking is quite generic, and the exact 'style' of windshield (tinted, clear, etc.) or even brand/type of glass (Tempered, Low-E, etc.) you need is specific to the make, model, etc. of your car. Q: Accessing non-static members of non-static members Suppose I have the following structure:

class A { private: struct B { int a; B() { a = 0; } } public: B

`func(); private: int *b; } class C : public A { public: void func() {
//How do I access the member a of class B? } }` In this code, the member `a` of `B` is accessible through the class `A` and `C`, but I can't figure out how to access it from inside the class `C`. Is this possible? A: You can't do this. 2d92ce491b
