Mudit Khanna Medicine (iBooks Wonders)Q: Emacs: How do I move end-of-line characters (characters on next line) with shift-right-arrow This is likely something really simple, but... In Emacs, if I have two empty lines, and I hit shift-right-arrow The result is to have a third line above those two empty lines. I'd like this to be interpreted as adding the characters on the line above to the line below, rather than just moving the line above. Is there a key sequence that does this? A: There is a function called move-end-of-line that can be used to accomplish this. Try it out in the emacs buffer: shift-right-arrow M-x describe-function (C-h f) move-end-of-line describe-function If you want to map it to a key you can type C-x ((define-key input-decode-map "shift-right-arrow" (lambda (modifier arg) "move-end-
