Histone H4-H2A.Z, a histone variant, is present at a higher level in early embryos than in somatic cells and accumulates in early embryos in the absence of fertilization. We compared the protein composition of total histones isolated from the same 0-1-h post fertilization-2-cell-stage zygote and from the resulting 2-cell and 8-cell stages by two-dimensional gel electrophoresis. The total histone composition was the same in 0-1-h and 2-cell-stage embryos, as well as in the resulting 8-cell embryos. The data also suggest that not all histone H4-H2A.Z molecules in the embryo are actively assembled into the nucleosomes.Hoveround: A Mind-controlled Hoverboard for Learning Robotics Motorola and Intel have formed a partnership to bring mind-controlled vehicles to the consumer market. It's not just for teens - you could ride around in a mind-controlled hoverboard and learn robotics and computer science. The technology is called Hoveround, a personal vehicle that uses Intel's chips to control movements, so you just think "backward" to go backwards, and think "forward" to go forward. To get to their research lab, you'd have to first think of a noun, a verb, a pronoun, a noun, a noun, and another noun. It's a bit over-engineered for the user, but it's actually a pretty interesting concept. You could use it to do things like control your phone or play simple games - and you wouldn't need a bike to get around.Q: How to get a JAR file by name from a local repository? I need to find out the path of a JAR file (via a shell script) that's in a local 2d92ce491b
