But this is not the case. Is it because I have installed the fonts on my system? It is due to this. I have read the following articles. But I still don't have any luck. What should I do? A: Installing the Hindi fonts as described in the two blog posts linked in the question (under Linux) will not work for Adobe Premiere Pro CS5. There is an official way of enabling the correct Hindi characters in Adobe Premiere Pro CS5 for free. You can download the correct.ttf files from here Unfortunately, as of Adobe Premiere Pro CS5,.ttf files are not allowed as graphic file types, so you won't be able to directly import them to use in Adobe Premiere Pro CS5. You must use a third-party font rendering plugin to install the.ttf files. I am currently using the FontForge plugin. FontForge allows you to convert.ttf files to Adobe Premiere Pro CS5 compatible.otf files. You must first install FontForge. Once FontForge is installed, open the Preferences window, go to the Font submenu and choose "Install font" > "Install TTF file" The.otf font files must be placed on the default installation folder, i.e. in ~/Library/Fonts/ You can now import those font files into Adobe Premiere Pro CS5. There is also a .otf plugin that you can download from here, and which will render the font for free. Unfortunately, the support for this plugin is deprecated, so Adobe is not officially supported any more. The downloaded plugin should now be available in the Rendering Settings dialog box. You have now enabled the correct Hindi characters for Adobe Premiere Pro CS5. A multiscale model for the mechanical behaviour of collagen fibres subjected to mechanical loading.
