70.720p 07:00 A: After reading the question I can understand the logic of your programming. You are getting only a specific word from every line, I assume you want to get the word that starts with j. Try the below logic if(strpos($line, 'j')!== false){ $mapping[$line] = $line; } Edit: So if you want to have only positive integers in the array, you can filter them using a condition like $numOnly = array_filter($mapping); Edit: Now If you want the "j" word to be of specific width, then do something like this if(strpos($line, 'j')!== false){ $mapping[$line] = $line; }else if(strpos($line, 'hh')!== false){ $mapping[$line] = $line; }else{ $mapping[$line] = $line; } Edit: If you want a space between the word and the surrounding string, do something like this $mapping[$line] = $line; if(strpos($line, 'j')!== false){ $mapping[$line] = $line; }else if(strpos($line, 'hh')!== false){ $mapping[$line] = $line; }else{ $mapping[$line] = $line; } The invention relates to a preformed belt having a reinforcing fabric, particularly a woven fabric, to which synthetic, preferably polyolefin-based, monofilaments have been bonded in an extruded state to form a positive reinforcement. A positive reinforcement of this type is suitable in particular for vehicle belts, in particular those intended to be used on the exterior side of the belt, for example as a diagonal reinforcement. The monofilaments of the positive reinforcement can be bonded to the fabric by, for example, stitching or gluing, in particular, welding or vulcanizing. In the vehicle-belt sector, it is known for a diagonal reinforcement of a belt to be made of different types of cloth. A woven fabric, having a layer
