Kitchen Assistant opens up new possibilities, because it offers the means to automatically calculate cooking times and dishes in line with your personal preferences. After all, the application doesn't require any background in computing, as long as you know how to use the program and can access the internet. Cooking times and dishes Firstly, the application offers the possibility to automatically set different cooking times, and dishes for each food in the recipe. This can be done by simply giving the name of the dish and the cooking time for each recipe. Although the application is built with holidays, and major food groups in mind, it can also be custom-made, and offers the means to calculate cooking times and dishes for any specific food. The primary interface for the recipe includes the recipe itself, with links to all of the images and information you can find. As an added bonus, the recipe can be customized, and the ingredients and the cooking times can be taken into account, allowing you to create food group-specific recipes. As soon as you're done, you
