Treatment of severe influenza A in the pediatric intensive care unit. Severe influenza in children is rarely diagnosed; however, children with influenza-associated acute respiratory distress syndrome can benefit from aggressive therapy. We report 10 consecutive cases of children admitted to the pediatric intensive care unit (PICU) with severe influenza and compare outcomes between children treated with and without oseltamivir. Ten children with influenza-associated acute respiratory distress syndrome were admitted to our PICU with median age of 7 months (4 days-15 years) and median duration of mechanical ventilation of 7 days (1-15). All were treated with oseltamivir, IV neuraminidase inhibitors, and aggressive fluid and ventilatory management. Median Pediatric Risk of Mortality (PRISM) and Pediatric Index of Mortality (PIM) scores were 1 (0-15) and 10 (1-25), respectively. All had central venous catheters, and eight underwent mechanical ventilation. The median length of hospitalization was 7 days (2-33). Two patients died, the most common causes of death being hypoxic brain injury (n = 1), sepsis with respiratory failure (n = 1), and multi-organ

Lambada The Lambada is one of the main rhythmic samba styles created by Raimundo Peixe. It is danced to the traditional samba/lamba song, "Lambada", which was a Brazilian song composed by Pedro Roberto D'Avila of Vitória, Nordeste, and first issued in 1911. Lambada has a fast tempo, jumping rhythms, and a distinctive choreography that involves rhythmic gestures such as kicks and torso twists. The dancers wear tight, colorful tops and lower their bodies slowly and in sinuous movements. According to the official document called "Regulamento Orientado ao Desenvolvimento da Competição e Escola Brasileira de Lambada" of the Escola de Bagunço Dance Team of the International Confederation of Societies of the Performing Arts (CISPA) Misionário Miguel, João Solano and Júlio Aguirre have the biggest influence on the Raimundo Peixe, the dance choreographer and founder of the Lambada. History When it first appeared in Rio de Janeiro, the Lambada was danced only in the Barra district in the Botafogo neighborhood. Due to its popularity, the dance spread around the country. Pedro Roberto D'Avila composed the song "Lambada" in 1911 and the dance's choreography was first presented by Raimundo Peixe in 1924. Peixe is the author of the preface of the book "Ritual e Navegação dos Samba-canções e Danças do Brasil". This preface was published in 1935 and is called the "Prólogo do samba", so this can be considered the first publication of the dance. The Brazilian Samba Dance Contest is one of the main representatives of the Lambada. In this competition, organized by the International Confederation of Societies of the Performing Arts (CISPA) and the Brazilian Association of Dance Schools (ABBDP), the students in the most outstanding schools compete for the title of Latin American Champion and National Champion of Brazil. The lambada dance was introduced in this contest in the first edition in 1998, and it became popular. In the last edition in 2015, over 100,000 people attended the competition.
