The UKIP front-runner asked Mr Osborne to explain his decision to cut £8.4bn from the budget. Former leader Nigel Farage said: "At the last election, we were told that we had to make sacrifices and get on with a less prosperous future. "Today, we have been told that the answer to Britain's problems is austerity. This is not a responsible answer. "If we are to face the storm of globalisation, we will need the public sector to be big enough and well funded enough to create new wealth." UKIP leader Nigel Farage said the budget would be slashed In his first major interview since his success in the European elections, Mr Farage told Channel 4 News: "I want to deal with the real issues of the moment in this country. "The austerity we have seen is not working. We saw it in the way the national debt is rising. "We saw it in the way they have made cuts to the police and to education and to the armed forces. "We see it in the way that we have low growth. We see it in the fact that Britain is the sixth largest economy in the world and we have a much bigger economy than the United States." "We are now down to the last £500m between us and the United States." Mr Farage said: "I want to see growth and jobs. I want to see a growth plan - something which will take us away from this nightmare of low growth." The UKIP leader's comments follow Labour MP John Denham's attack on Mr Osborne's budget in the Commons. The cabinet minister said: "The Prime Minister has asked this House to vote for him in the knowledge that he is going to harm people's lives. "The Prime Minister's budget day has been a success for the Prime Minister. For the cost of two large plane landings his budget is worse than it was last year and worse than it was last time and worse than any budget since John Major. Debating with a tautology. I have to debate if a certain statement is a tautology, and I believe it is. I did read the question, this one(Adjective), but the answers to the aforementioned question are not helpful. The statement is as following: If all the inhabitants of a country are as clever and as industrious as the inhabitants of this city, then the people in that country are as intelligent and as industrious as the people in this city. 5ec8ef588b
